PAWCATUCK, CT — February 4, 2008 —The Oliver Group, an internationally recognized leader in data acquisition, media restoration and conversion, today announced further expansion of its European Union operations.

Having realized significant revenue growth from its United Kingdom and Western European operations over the last two years, The Oliver Group is expanding its office and media processing center in London, England, to facilitate additional support for the burgeoning EU electronic discovery market. This significant increase in operational capacity will enable The Oliver Group to deliver the full range of services currently offered in the US, as well as provide improved data throughput and turnaround times for its clients.

“We are pleased to be able to support our clients more seamlessly within the EU and US by offering more options for how, and where, their electronic discovery projects are managed and supported,” said Dean Felicetti, partner at The Oliver Group. “Given the current economic climate and increase in global litigation and associated electronic discovery matters, we expect our services and those of our partners to be in greater demand over the coming years.”

In addition to its traditional data acquisition, forensic and media restoration services, The Oliver Group has added high speed deduplication, culling and search capabilities to enhance its portfolio of services. Building upon its reputation for delivering high quality data and outstanding customer service, these additional capabilities will enable The Oliver Group to better support large scale projects throughout the world.
